From the Lexington (Ky.) Statesman. HON. JAMES B. CLAY.

The issue of the recent congressional election in this district inculcates some valuable lessons, which partisan leaders and editors would do well to ponder and remember. It argues for the people an intelligence, a firmness of purpose, and a discrimination between right and wrong not, accredited them by demagognes and rabble-rousers. Temporary excitements and appeals to the lower passions of men may for a time warp the judgment and lead astray the popular mind. But there is in the great heart of the masses an instinctive sense of justice and a perception of right which, on the return of the sobe second thought, never fails to correct past errors and to visit on the heads of designing leaders a just condemnation. The wild delirium of passion and prejudice may for a time blind the masses to great truths, but the storm tained by a national party and the unconstitutional measures of a personal faction. In behalf of the one, the sober judgment, the intelligence and patriotism of the people have been addressed in calm, dispassionate argument. To advance the other, the most humiliating appeals to passion, partisen animosities, and personal sympathies have been relied upon. Upon our side the people have been called upon to sustain the constitution, the tribu nais of the land, and the laws. Upon the other, the have been besought to uphold the exponent of a crushed faction out of pure compassion, and out of regard to old ditical associations.

Personal detraction, malignant abuse, and unlimited on excites for the object a sympathy rather than rejudice. It has been so in this case. No man ever outended in the political arena with such violent personassaults, and for less cause, than Hon. James B. Clay vocabulary of abuse has been exhausted against
But, sustained by conscious rectitude of purpose, and a firm conviction that the position he had taker and a firm conviction that the position he had taken and the course he pursued was that which would redound to the high interests of his country, he has gone before the people, and, bidding deflance to his calumniators, has submitted his course to the hon-est masses. Their verdict has been one of emphatic ap-probation, and he stands to-day so high in the estimation his fellow-citizens that the yells of party hounds will not again reach his ears. As in the dark hour of adversity he despised their malignant abuse, neither he nor his friends can in this the hour of his proud vindication respond to their persistent detraction. He has sought no place or office for office sake. But, obedient to the call of the people, he has seized their standard and borne it on the people, he has select their standard and torne it on to victory despite the bitter opposition of personal foes. Regarding an election by the people an endorsement of his course by his fellow-citizens, and a verdict of well done from the hearts of those with whom he has acted, and with whose interests his are identified, he declined high office, and came before the honest masses for pre-ferment. The people have thrown around him a mantle of leve, and raised before him an ægis of protection, from which the shafts of calumny must hencefort rebound upon his slanderers. His vindication has been complete, his honor great, but nobly has he won his laurels, and worthy has he proven himself of the proud po-

GEN. JACKSON'S GCLD BOX.

DUNDOYNE, LA., July 25, 1857.

As a misunderstanding seems to exist in regard to cerain bequests of my lamented and venerated friend, Gen. Andrew Jackson, and particularly as to the character of the box presented to him by the city of New York, and now to be awarded to the most gallant of the sons of that great State, I trust it will not be deemed obtrusive in me to attempt "to vindicate the truth of history" by the nt of certain facts within my knowledge. The box referred to is not a snuff box, but a massive gold box, designed to convey to the illustrious tenant of the Hermitage the complimentary vote of the freedom of the city of New York, and was intrusted to the hands of my late friend, Mr David C. Colden, of that city, who was the bearer of introductory letters from myself, then cadet at West Point

There are, moreover, the service of plate presented to the old hero by the ladies of Charleston, and the picture representing the gallant Poinsett flaunting the glorious stars and stripes in deflance of a Mexican mob.

Feeling an especial interest in the approbation of these valued and valuable relics, early in the last year I wrote to Senator Slidell, requesting him to call the attention of my lamented friend, Senator Butler, to the fact that they and the latter replied: "Just at the close of our legisla-ture I brought to the view of Governor Adams the clause of Gen. Jackson's will to which my attention had been called by Mr. Slidell. Some proceeding will be instituted to carry into effect the honorable bequest of the General. He munifested a paternal spirit to his native state, well worthy of commendation. It will be difficult, however, to carry into effect the clause of the will referred to."

From the St. Paul Advertiser, Aug. 1. INDIAN AFFAIRS.

Two hundred troops at Fort Ridgely, and half that mber at Ripley, would amply protect the frontier. The mere presence of one hundred and forty men at the Sioux agency, under Major Sherman, including his famous battery, has proved effectual not only in reclaiming the wavering allegiance of the discontented bands, and expelling the evil spirits who originated the recent troues, but, with the firm policy pursued by Superintendent Cullen in withholding their annuities till the murderers are delivered up, has made them the willing instruments of the government in executing the terrible punishment Crow has gone after these fellows with a party of braves, and has promised to exterminate them. The policy of this measure on the part of the government is extremely doubtful. Disguised by whatever pretext, it is looked upon by the Indians as a confession of weakness. They believe that the government troops are afraid of Inkpa-

Letter-writers from the agency, however, have mistaken the blustering demeanor of the Indians for a hostile disposition. There has been no such disposition. There has been indeed, under the provocation of irritating ex actions, an ostentation of arms, and a parade of force. But the Indians have a trick of theatrical display. They mean nothing—least of all a general outbreak. When Maj. Sherman, upon the refusal of the disaffected Indians to deliver up the fellow who stabbed a soldier, sent a messenger to their camp on the east side of the river to warn all those who did not want to fight to remove to the other side of the stream, and desire those who did to remain, they retired, every mother's son of them, to the peaceable side of Jordan. The Indian who committed the assault on the soldier was finally taken and placed under guard. Rev. Mr. Breck, of the Leech Lake Mission, is in town In the opinion of those best acquainted with the signifi-cance of the threats or intimations of drunken Chippewas, Mr. Breck has somewhat exaggerated the cause of alarm which induced him to leave the country. His immediate Indian neighbors were in the highest degree friendly. But living upon a tract of land ceded by the tribe, and partially improved by appropriations from their funds, some drunken fellows endeavored to establish their law f community of property over the premises of the mis-ion, and to make Mr. Breek divide his chattels with them. They killed a calf belonging to him, blustered about his dwelling, talked sancy, &c. Well, it was after payment, and they were drunk. Every trader has passed through the same ordeal hundreds of times. Mr. Breck would have been perfectly safe from their depreda tions if his holy calling had not prevented him from

It is now astruments of death, and the murder itself. It is now elieved that Dr. Burdell was killed at about 8 o'clock in he evening; that, as appeared on the trial, all the gentlemen boarders and lodgers were away; that the doctor did not enter his house at 11 o'clock at night, as was sworn to on the trial, but that some one, robed in his hat and clock, with his cane, did enter, to blind the people and complete the bloody scheme; and that all this time Burdell lay, a livid and bloody corpse, on the floor of his office. It is understood that the authorities have got a due to this transaction, and that soon some startling and errible revelations will be made.

The tone of the New York bar and the medical profession are high in this city—as much so as in any city in the world. But we have a large class of shysters in the law, and quacks in medicine, ready for any dirty act or job that may turn up. These scent such a case as Mrs. Cun-ningham's with the scent of a vulture when a carcass rots. When Mrs. Cunningham was on trial for her life she had able counsel; when she sued as the widow of Harvey Burdell for her rights, and presented a prima facie case, men of standing at the bar stood up for no. in the courts; but when she was caught in her bold, bad scheme these high-minded men left her to her folly and punishment.

But medical men, so called, are willing to be advertised as her "medical advisers," to give "medical opinions" that she had really been confined, and that the alms-house baby was really her own blessed babe, even after Dr. Uhl had exposed the plot and Dr. Catlin had turned State's evidence!

ligious world—and that is, can a democrat, a voter for and a supporter of President Buchanan, be a Christian and a member of a church in good and regular standing?" In one place, at least, the question has been decided in the negative, and quite a good man, and a deacon, has been excommunicated on the sole ground that he voted for James Buchanan, and thought the Nebraska act a just and constitutional measure! I think it served the deacon right for being found in such company. The fanatics who, under the form of church government, undertake to rule the consciences of men—blend church and State—deal damnation round the land on all they hoose to call the fees of the Lord-are not the men whom emocrats should be found with; and the democrats have lways issued the ban against such "lords over the eritage of God," as men unfit for their calling, wolves a sheep's clothing, who fleece but do not feed the flock. national man, who fears God, reveres his name and his sanctuary, his word and his worship, asks no place, and will accept none, in that "synagogue of Satan," called by what name it may be, where the slime of politics is given for the Word of the Lord, the stone of fanaticism for the bread of faith, and the rantings of the stump orators for the selemnities of Zion, and third-rate editorials from a black-republican newspaper for the words of the Lord Jesus Christ. Those who like the fodder that ich shepherds give can stand up to the rack.

man of some standing and position. He was wrapt in the midst of a political excitement that then agitated the church into a fanatical brotherhood. There he remained some time, run down morally; was called before the church, expelled therefrom, and sent back into the world. But the world's people held a public meeting and voted that, as this fanatical body of men had taken a member from them, damaged him, and sent him back in a worse condition than they found him, they would not receive him again till he was sent back to them in as good a moral and social condition as he was in when

The grasping, tyrannical, and unconstitutional spirit of the black-republican party is seen wherever they have the power to act. Under all their aliases, from President Jefferson's time to President Buchanan, their success has been marked by some atrociously unconstitutional measure designed to benefit the few and damage the many. When our black-republican legislature resolved to trample down the rights of New York city, one would have supposed that they would have passed laws that the mass would regard as constitutional, though they might be considered oppressive, and burdensome, and intolerant. In a country like ours there can be no apology for treadng up so close to the line that divides the constitutional from the unconstitutional that a microscope in the hands of the bar and bench can hardly tell whether the law is over the line or not. A wide berth, so that no one need doubt that the act was within the scope of the legislative body, though the law itself might be hated, would have been acquiesced in quietly, but with a resolution to wipe out the offence when the opportunity presented. But not so. True to the instincts of the fees of the democracy, these black republicans resolve to rule New York, to do it in the most offensive way, and to press up so close to the line that even the high court of appeals have to say that in spirit the law is unconstitutional, though the letter of the constitution may bear out the great statute. So do these men ever, and so have they done; so will they when they can grasp the power!

No man has been found to take the place of Mr. Draper on the police commission. Nearly six hundred ballots have been cast. It is now rumored that Gov. King has come to the resolution to call an extra session of the legislature, and amend the law and end the contest.

MANHATTAN. A VESSEL BOUND FROM CHICAGO TO LIVERPOOL .- The

Chicago Press of the 6th instant says: "Yesterday forenoon it was announced in the Board of Trade rooms that the British schooner Madeira Pet, Capt. Crang, had cleared for Liverpool from this port, and would sail in the afternoon. Accordingly, about four o'clock, the 'Pet,' which lay at the foot of Clark street, was sur-rounded by several hundreds, who had assembled, eager to see the first English vessel sail from our wharves direct for Liverpool.

"The little schooner was all trimmed 'ready for sea.'
On the topmast floated in majesty the stars and stripes of our glorious Union, and at the stern streamed the British union-jack.

"On sailing down the river she was saluted by the crews of every yessel, and wherever there was standing-room on our wharves, on the tops of the warehouses, and on the bridges, were clusters of our citizens cheering and hurrahing in honor of the event. Meanwhile, the band alternately played 'Hail Columbia,' 'God save the Queen,' and 'Yankee Doodle.'

and 'Yankee Doodle.'

"The cargo of the Madeira Pet consists of about four thousand cured hides, with which cargo she draws as much water as the canals between this port and Montreal will allow. On her passage down, however, she will take on a few staves in St Clair river to fill up with.'

Of this number 415 were first-class passengers. The remaining 27,177 were taken to the emigrant depot at Castle Garden, and were sent thence to different points of the country, but mostly to the West. Nearly one-half of the number of arrivals during the month were from the port of Liverpool.

There has just been fitted out at Atchison, Mis There has just been fitted out at Atchison, Missouri, one of the largest of those caravans or "trains" by which the commerce between the States and the Great Salt Lake valley is carried. The train consists of seventy-three wagons, 876 oxen, and ninety men. It is laden with 140 tons of assorted merchandise, adapted to the Salt Lake trade. Some idea of the immense value of the goods carried by this train may possibly be had when we state that the freight alone upon them from here to Salt Lake will exceed $40,000. Similar trains are also fitting out at Weston, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Independence, &c.

Bayard Taylor, in his last letter to the Tribune, relates the following: An anecdote which I heard in Sweden, and neglected to relate in its proper place, returns to me here. It is too good to be lost. Last summer an American, who was on a visit to St. Petersburgh, happened to be walking in one of the narrow streets of the capital one muddy day, when he suddenly met the Grand Duke Constantine. The sidewalk was not wide enough for two persons to pass and the street was deep in filth. Both stopped, and a moment's awkward pause ensued. Suddenly, the American, taking a silver rouble from his pocket, shook it in his closed bands, and cried out, "Crown or tail!" "Crown!" guessed the Grand Duke. "Your highness has won," said the American, looking at the rouble, and stepping into the mud. His cuteness in saving his dignity, while he acknowledged the Grand Duke's, brought him an invitation the next day to dine with the latter; but this is as usual a termination of such stories as a happy marriage is of a fashionable novel.

In the accounts of the rebellion of the native troop In the accounts of the rebellion of the native troops in British India It is stated that the mutineers found in the bank at Delhi gold to the amount of $55,000. It is hoped that the improbability of this statement—so large an amount of speele in a country bank—will not have the effect of discrediting the entire news. This month's return of the 137 banks in Massachusetts, out of Boston, shows a stock of specie averaging $8,150 in each, or a little over a million of dollars, in cash; they have in circulation—the 137 together—sixteen millions in bills.

There were one thousand men, women, and boys following after, binding and shocking up the golden sheaves.
